This guy's (these guys?) been showing up in my super games since the early 80s, but I'm just now getting to converting him to SCRPG. Comes up pretty f faithful to his original Champions 1st edition incarnation, which is impressive given how very different the two games are mechanically. And yes, I was inspired to d o him when I randomly rolled a Creator/Loner archetype/approach, which is so silly it made me

Dragon Tiger Online is completely a chance

-based game. You have a 50:50 chance of winning every spin

, which means there are no dragon tiger cheats or dragon tiger formulas at wo rk when you play with a live dealer. This does not mean that there are no strate gies that can increase your chances of winning.
