Those radios often caused friction between couples, as men out for a walk were more taken by the broadcast than by their female comp anion. At least the radios never physically kept anyone from their families; oth erwise Sunday would be spent at the stadium or at home in front of the televisio n. Rita Pavone sang about it, scolding her companion for preferring football and leaving her alone; Dino Risi painfully portrayed it in his episodic movie, The Monsters, where in the episode What a Bad Life! , Vittorio Gassman plays a poor family man who spends what little he has to go to the stadium; Alberto Sordi rei terated this in the memorable scenes of The Husband and I know That You Know Tha t I Know .

Church, lunch, and the game are the three pillars upon which the Italia n Sunday was built. Three clustered events spaced a few hours within each other:

first duty, then necessity, and finally pleasure. Even if it does seem excessiv e calling it a pleasure, for all the times an afternoon defeat made our baked pa sta go down the wrong way and along with it, the entire weekend.

At my parents' house I discovered a drawer full of old pocket radios. I
