The cost of making an indie game can range somewhere between $10,000 to $1,000,000.

There are many factors that influence the cost of game development:

1. Team Size: Here are some examples:

2. Platform: The cost of developing for different platforms varies.

3. Genre: Different genres have different development costs.

4. Marketing: The cost of marketing and distribution is often overlooked.

5. Location: Development costs vary by region.

6. Time: The longer it takes to develop, the more expensive it is.

7. Quality: Higher quality games cost more to develop.

8. Scope: The more features, the higher the cost.

9. Experience: More experienced developers cost more.

10. Risk: The risk of failure increases the cost.

11. Competition: The cost of competing in a crowded market.

12. Support: The cost of ongoing support and updates.

13. Distribution: The cost of getting the game to market.

14. Reviews: The cost of generating positive reviews.

15. Community: The cost of building a community around the game.

16. Legal: The cost of legal fees and royalties.

17. Miscellaneous: Other costs like travel and food.
